LARGE NUMBER FOR SQUAD B BASKETBALL

Over Forty Men Turned Out Last Night.

VAN WAGNER IS COACH.

City League Begins on Dec. 8th—McGill Plays Four Games on This Date.

Squad "B" held their first regular practice Wednesday in Molson's Hall at 7.15. Coach Van Wagner was in charge, and before starting any playing he spoke a few words to the men present. He urged that above all their aim in basketball should be speed. He pointed out that the faster team is the team which holds the ball the greater part of the time, and consequently has the greater opportunities for shooting. He discouraged any close checking that might result in a foul, and ended by advising everybody to read the 1920 Spalding Rules.

Forwards, Guards and centres then separated into three groups, and two teams were quickly set into action. As about forty men were present, a great many changes were made, but nevertheless the practice was a very successful one.

Two intermediate and two Junior teams are to be picked from this squad, so there are all kinds of chances for every man.

Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays are the days set aside for Squad "B" basketball practices; the exact time for each day will be announced later. However, the hours for Friday are fixed at from 6.15 to 7.00.

All men who intend turning out for basketball will have to turn out now, as the period before Christmas is a very important one. The City League starts on December 8th, and McGill will play several important games on this date. They are as follows:

Senior—McGill vs. Central "Y," at McGill.

Intermediate, Section A—McGill vs. Central "Y," at McGill.

Section B—M.A.A.A. vs. McGill, at M.A.A.A.

It is therefore very important that all men wishing to try for any team turn out regularly, as it is necessary to pick the teams for the City League in less than two weeks' time.

Everybody out and help McGill; have the best teams possible.

INTEREST SHOWN IN MILITARY WORK

C.O.T.C. Has Large Enrolment and Growing — Returned Men in Evidence.

Now that the "fed-up" feeling is off, much interest in military training is being shown. The C.O.T.C. is now over one hundred and sixty strong, and growing rapidly. Many returned men are in evidence and are breaking in the young idea. A dual programme has been arranged providing both infantry and cavalry work, and signalling is also being taught. Later, work of a more interesting nature, such as simple tactical schemes and night operations, will be carried out, but with the large percentage of new blood there is much spade work still to be done.

Some members of the Corps have become slack in their attendance. This is most unfair to the rest, as the elementary work cannot be completed. It is trying to the instructors and the rest of the squads, and is nothing more or less than bad sportsmanship. Try and turn out regularly and put your back into it, and BE ON TIME—at least five minutes before the hour for parade. The McGill C.O.T.C. used to be the smartest corps in the Canadian Active Militia—bar none. With the support of the members, this proud position can be resumed.

A number of new junior non-commissioned officers have been recently appointed. In order to get in touch with them and give them some idea of their duties in peace and war, there will be a meeting at the Orderly Room every Friday at 5.15 p.m. Capt. Cutmore will give a short talk on the duties of N.C.O.'s, and with his wide experience the talks will be well worth hearing. Remember—this Friday at 5.15—To-day.

TO THE STUDENT BODY OF MCGILL.

There have appeared in the "Daily" of late, several letters emphasizing the admiration that all McGill students feel for their Football Team, and evincing a desire to show that admiration and appreciation of the fighting spirit and excellent sportsmanship that the squad has so well demonstrated.

Several suggestions to this end have been received by the Students' Council, and one of these is that the Senior team be given a dinner by the students. The Council is heartily in favor of the suggestion and in order to arrange the details the President of the Students' Council requests that all the Presidents of the classes of all Faculties, along with the Undergrad Presidents will meet him to-day (26th Nov.) at 12.30 in the Grill Room of the Union.

All others who are interested are also asked to be present.

B.W. & F. NOVICE TOURNAMENT IS POPULAR

Many Boxers Entered—Good Material.

GEO. FOX, REFEREE.

Light Men Tried Out Yesterday—Others To Be Eliminated Tuesday.

Yesterday afternoon the beginners boxing class held their practice in the form of a novice tournament. A large number were out, and only the men under one hundred and twenty-five pounds were able to have their bouts.

Dr. Lamb weighed the men, and Fox made up the lists for the bouts. Each round lasted one and a half minutes with a corresponding time for a rest. Two rounds constituted a bout. The object of the novice tournament was to pick out the likely men for the advanced class.

The fellows who agreed to compete for a place in the advanced class include two 110-pound men, five 118-pound men, and twelve 125-pound men. Boxers competing for the heavier weights will be tried out next Tuesday. So far, all the men who have been tried out need to develop their skill and physical condition. A few of the men pack a good punch, and under careful training by "Jack" McBrearty, ought to make a fine class of boxers. Any men who are fortunate enough to be promoted to the advanced class will certainly receive good instruction in boxing. The number of boxers in this class will be limited to between thirty-two and forty men.

At the boxing tournament, the 110-pound men showed up well; light men are as a rule faster and make things lively for a time. Davidson and Huxtable surely did mix things up. It was decided that Davidson was good enough to go in with the advanced class at their next practice.

Four men were up for the 118-pound class: Walker vs. Delahay, and Gaslin vs. Fullerton.

Delahay and Fullerton made the best showing, and will meet each other in a final elimination.

There was keener competition in the 125-pound class, and in some cases it was impossible to render a decision. This will not prevent eliminations but will only prolong them. The bouts in this class were:

Addleman vs. Marsh. No decision given.

Benson vs. Burnett. Burnett won. McCuag vs. Conner. Conner won. Patton vs. Sullivan. No decision. Graham vs. McLennan. Graham won.

Denis vs. Manson. No decision.

So far, everything has met with the expectations of the coach, and no difficulties have been encountered. When the successful contestants have gone into the advanced class, there will be room for other men with the beginners.

Further eliminations will take place on Tuesday, so all who signed are asked to turn out sharp on time.

C. O. T. C.

There will be a meeting of the N.C.O.'s at the orderly room at 5.15 p.m. to-day. A full attendance is requested.

IMMIGRATION TREATED AT ECONOMIC CLUB

Largest Attendance For Some Time.

PROF. LEACOCK SPOKE.

Mr. J. Jones Read Interesting Paper — Refreshments Served.

The Political Economy Club held a very interesting, profitable and well attended meeting last evening in the Smoking-room of the Arts Building. There were representatives from the three upper years of Arts as well as a few men from Commerce. The president, L. W. Kern, was in the chair, and Dr. Leacock was present. After refreshments, consisting of coffee and cake, had been served, the gathering came to order, and Mr. J. Jones was called upon to address the meeting upon "Immigration."

Mr. Jones, who is one of the prominent Canadian authorities on this subject, began by giving a general statement of the problem; it is a basic problem of our economic, social and educational system, and cannot be ignored by any student of present conditions in Canada. As an economic question, immigration might be regarded as being caused by the "call of the dinner pail"—a desire for better living conditions which are hoped for in the new land. As a supplemental issue, transportation, the housing problem, labor unions, education, the reconstruction made necessary in local society by the influx of new peoples, all must be considered.

Viewed from a social standpoint, probably education and assimilation take primary rank. Canada must train these raw, untutored youths, fresh from the Old World, with all its traditions and customs hindering their forward progress, to be true citizens of our great commonwealth. How is this to be brought about? By an efficient school system and by permitting and by inducing these men and women to mix with Canadian people, and to realize fully the great opportunities open to them, and also the great responsibilities devolved upon them in this new country. The speaker gave statistics to back up his statements, showing that the greatest percentage of our criminals were foreigners, and that the reason of these men's downfall was to a great extent their illiteracy and their inability to break away from the conventions of European peasant society.

Mr. Jones proceeded to point out that our present standards of immigration were stricter than previous to the war, and that the type of immigrant is much superior to that formerly received into Canada, and probably due to more stringent regulations, superior to the class entering the United States. Certain classes are forbidden admittance, as are also Germans and Austrians, unless holding citizenship papers of another nation. These immigrants must be in a state of continual travel; their papers must date from the country of their nationalization; if for reasons of physical disability they are deported, their transportation charges are refunded. Mr. Jones strongly advocated the establishment of Canadian medical staffs at the various points of departure overseas, thus saving the voyager the possibility of being rejected on this side and having to repeat his tedious journey homeward.

The speaker spoke very favorably of the work being done by the Y.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A. at the ports of disembarkation, and closed with a vivid description of the ambitions, of the dreams, of the emotions of the immigrant as he leaves his connections in the Old Land, for the promise held out in the new—truly he constitutes a human problem.

Dr. Leacock in commenting upon the previous speaker's paper, dwelt upon the clarity and force of his presentation, and touched upon many of the points mentioned. Dr. Leacock appeared to be in favor of Canada offering more inducements to the desirable foreign immigrant, affirming that we could obtain an inflow of one million a year by this means.

A lively and comprehensive discussion followed. Five, of fourth year, gave a summary of conditions prevailing in the Canadian North-West, and his lead was followed by almost all of those present, who took this occasion to express their leanings and to question Mr. Jones.

CASE AMBITION

Six years have gone by since the Case Specialty Shop, for Men, and Women who shop for Men, was opened—

Six years which have seen this business increasing by leaps and bounds. This achievement is the result of ambition; an ambition to create a business founded on honest quality and value in apparel. On this we have built a reputation for handling nothing but the best. That is why people do not confuse our present opportunities with ordinary "Sales." They realize that the name which stands behind Case apparel will not suffer the Case Label to be placed on any article that is not of reliable quality and value.

McGill Daily

THE ONLY COLLEGE DAILY IN CANADA

The Official Organ of the Students' Society of McGill University.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1920.

A MISUNDERSTANDING

An article which appeared in yesterday's "Daily" entitled "Grave Accident on Notre Dame" caused considerable misunderstanding among a great many students in the University. The item in question was written up and brought to us by a member of the Law Faculty. All the people whose names appeared therein were members of that Faculty. The event, of course, is entirely fictitious and is merely a hypothetical case on which a Mock Trial is to be based. This mock trial is soon to take place in the Law Building with Justice Greenshields presiding. We are sorry that the article in question was thought by many to be an account of an actual happening.

STUDENT LEADERS

The average college student is usually very diffident about making a display of his private feelings. The gregarious instinct of youth causes him to sink his individuality and personal convictions in the general trend of student opinion. He has the utmost horror of being thought "queer" or "different" — his one hope and desire is to approximate as closely as possible to the rest of his fellows.

This leads to a condition of monotony which is only rarely relieved by the strong-minded attitude of one of those natural born leaders who appear around every campus once in so many years. Such a person has none the less the characteristics of a hero (in the Carlylian sense) because his following is entirely composed of beardless students. The essentials are the same, the quick perception, the organizing power or the ready gift of words, whatever may be the means by which the campus leader exerts his influence.

The power and authority exercised by such men is really remarkable. No one can escape exerting an influence any more than he can avoid casting a shadow on a sunny day. Compared to the influence of the outstanding student—that of the professor is weak and insipid. The student leader is amongst his own kind, the desires and aspirations, the hopes and fears of the great student-body are known to him and these are the chords upon which he strikes.

Such men are at once the hope and the danger of college life. If their influence be for good there is no means of estimating the benefits they are capable of bringing to corporate college life. If, however, they are warped within themselves, if their ideals and their desires are impure, they present a grave menace to the safety of the university which harbors them.

To-day at McGill there are undoubtedly a few men who are earmarked for greatness. They command a ready following in whatever they undertake. They are vested with certain powers but also, let them remember, with grave responsibilities. It is not too much to say that they can make or destroy the soul of their university. Let us hope that they will always wisely exercise their far-reaching power.

SNOW SHOE CLUB HELD ELECTION

Track Teams and Competitive Events Promised.

The principal topic of the Snow-shoe Club meeting last evening was the coming winter carnival at McGill this year. As showboating is directly connected with the success of a carnival, the newly-appointed executive realize that herein lies a great impetus to the success of the club this winter. Mr. Hamilton, last year's president, opened the meeting. He informed those present of the purpose of the club at McGill. He emphasized the necessity of a whole-hearted interest on the part of the executive about to be elected. He then called for nominations to the various offices, and the election proceeded. The list of those elected appears below. For the benefit of the newly-formed executive, Mr. Hamilton then outlined the activities of the club up to the present. He stated that success from an athletic standpoint was certain, provided the student body at large realized the easiness of learning how to snowshoe, and that the club always arranges to supply the necessary equipment for those not having same, at a nominal fee. The exact charge will be announced later. With this point in view, a sub-committee was elected to arrange the social activities of the club. It is the intention of the executive to arrange a tramp at the earliest possible date.

All are urged to take part in this first tramp if possible, and particularly those who have never snowshoed. It is impossible for the club to obtain material for their future track meets unless the students turn out for the tramps. In this way, the executive feel that many who at present think that they cannot snowshoe, shall be convinced of the opposite, once they have attended the first tramp. This accomplished, it shall be an easy matter to obtain very good material for the coming meets, including one at St. Johns, one at Dartmouth, and one at McGill. The executive also intend to apply for admission to the Athletic Association, at their next meeting, and Mr. Hamilton assured those present that the Association gave him every encouragement re being accepted. The outline of the club's doings is, briefly: To hold competitive events between the various faculties, then from these faculties choose a track team to represent Old McGill at the various outside meets. In order to get in touch with those who could make the teams, the tramps solve the difficulty.

During the meeting, mention was made of the popularity of snowshoe-

BASIC THINGS

Through the long years of war, this shop did not deviate one iota from its policy of square dealing service to its clientele and an honest effort to sell clothing that was right at a price as low as possible.

We have kept faith.

We have carried on our business at a stand where our clientele would not be forced to pay for rents that were soaring above the clouds. We have purchased only that quality of cloth which would stand the strain, for we want our clients back again---we want no once-over proposition.

That is the "Why" of our present day prices. We are not engaged in any price slashing campaign to turn-over our stock, but are simply giving the same honest service we have rendered in the past.

Before you buy, Men of Old McGill, compare our prices and our quality with those which pertain elsewhere.

That is all we ask.

Civilization.

INTERESTING TOPIC.

Misses Holland and Hackett
Put Forth Good Arguments.

A very interesting debate, entitled, "Resolved That Women Have Done More Towards the Progress of Civilization Than Men," took place last night in the Union, when representatives from the "Delta Sigma" and the "McGill Literary and Debating" Societies spoke before a "full house."

Mr. Abbott introduced the Messrs. Reford and Lebeau, who were to argue for the affirmative, and the Misses Holland and Hackett, who were to uphold the negative.

Mr. Reford, leader of the affirmative, began. He stated that women ever made for advancement in civilization by either an acquired or a natural taste for clothes. He cited as an instance the contrast between even the school boy and girl; the former's actual love for slovenly dress, and the latter's abhorrence of same. He treated of woman's great interest in the home, in the family; and, considering the family as the centre of social (and therefore of civilized) life, he concluded that woman played a much greater part here than man. Man, too, he urged, depends entirely upon woman and the home for comfort and happiness. A final thing that he impressed the audience with, was woman's keenness for assimilation of knowledge in all forms. Woman is ever so much keener, so much more serious, about undertakings than man is.

Miss Holland, leader of the negative, began by refuting some of Mr. Reford's statements. She reminded her opponent that it was woman's place in civilization that they were debating: "woman took care of her self and her family, even in the barbarous times." A point that she established without doubt was that "progress is creation, not assimilation." With this, she proceeded to define "civilization": "a state of society; progress in arts, sciences and statecraft." It certainly is true that in these, woman had made no progress. The question arises: Why not? Men were ever adapted for the bettering of humanity. Women were ever too patient, painstaking, not fond of mathematics, the sciences and the higher reasonings that are essential to leaders, and so natural to man. Over-emotional, influenced by prejudice, with lack of will, and acting on the spur of the moment rather than by reflection — woman could never contribute much to the advancement of civilization. Woman had done very little in inventing things for her own home, and could do less for the great humanity — away from her home.

The second speaker for the affirmative, Mr. Lebeau, now addressed the audience. He opened with a statement that almost sounded like a proposal. Speaking in the name of "the males," he leaned forward dramatically and gave utterance to these mystic monosyllables: "We love you all." He divided his address into three parts: The Woman in Motherhood; The Woman of Sacrifice; and Woman as the Apostle of Social Renovation. Of the first, he maintained that motherhood was the very basis of civilization; and in the matter of defining the latter, he would beg to differ with his fair opponent. In his opinion, civilization should be defined as "the fruit of the heart and soul of passing generations." It is the mother who inculcates honesty and religion in children and spirit and virtue in the home. As examples of Women of Sacrifice, he gave two classes: Teachers and Nurses. "Teachers have enormous influence upon the future leaders of the race." As for the nurses, he told of their great work in the war. "If man had not hindered her, woman would have progressed more—a great deal more."

"Where woman lies Victory is assured." And as proof, he quoted three illustrious examples: Jean D'Arc, Blanche de Castille and Queen Victoria. Ending, he made use of the famous words: "It is the tender hand that rocks the cradle, that rules the whole universe!"

Miss Hackett, second speaker for the negative side of the debate, rose amid cheers. She wondered why so much credit was given to mothers, not that she believed mothers didn't deserve it; but it seemed to her that the fathers should get a lot more credit than they ever got. The father has always given material guidance, and she saw in this more cause for praise than in the "poetic" spiritual guidance that the mothers gave. As for sacrifice, there were a great many doctors who did practically all that was worthy of praise. She, too, emphasized that the debate read: "Resolved, That Women HAVE Done—" not "CAN Do." "So far," she claimed, "man invents, and woman is shown how." In Europe, Canada and the United States, the very spiritual advice, that has been the salve to female life, comes from man—pastors. . . . In the inventions of Speech, Printing, Steam and Electricity; in explorations and discoveries; in everything that has tended towards greater civilization—man has always been predominant. And so, she felt sure, that with his advances in the arts, the sciences, in philosophy and religion, man has certainly made enormous strides, and that, whatever the future might develop. "It is certain that man has done more for the progress of civilization than woman."

Mr. Reford then made his rebuttal, but it was decidedly a weak ending. All felt pleased to hear Miss Syme announce, after some deliberation, that the negative side (the representatives of the Delta Sigma) had won.

Of the debaters, it may be said that all put forth interesting material. Mr. Lebeau made a good showing; Mr. Reford exhibited a little nervousness in manner and uncertainty in expression. The Misses Holland and Hackett, on the other hand, maintained praiseworthy attitudes throughout. We are still undecided as to whether the subject of "mere man" proved interesting to them on its own account, or on account of the number of points that was gleaned thereby for the above debate.

Last Monday

—Despite the fact that we had lost a game of football, a couple of the boys came into the store.

"It is true," they asked, "that you are selling REGALS at $3.00 to $4.50 a pair?"

After we had recovered a bit we admitted that such was not the case.

"Why," said we, "there wouldn't be a boot left in the shop if that was the case!"

But here's what we are doing. We have made a reduction of from $3 to $4.50 on every pair of Regals—and we add to that reduction the claim that there's not an equivalent value to that in town.

Did we sell those two boys? We'll say we did — and many other McGill men with them. And once they're sold they'll stay sold, for that's the way it works out with Regals.

Not only are Society Brand Suits and Overcoats up-to-the-minute in style but also in prices.

These new prices are placed on all the Fall Stocks at our dealers because they are what the clothes can be sold for at replacement prices to-day. No matter what conditions were when they were made months ago—to-day the prices of woollens and materials are lower. So we are selling Society Brand Clothes lower.

Thousands of people have come to take advantage of these prices — especially business men who know what it means to sell at replacement prices.

While we lose in dollars—we are gaining in good will. We know that from what our customers are telling us every day.

DRAMATIC SKETCHES.

Meeting Proved the Most Successful For the Present Year.

Wednesday afternoon a series of dramatic sketches was presented at the most successful meeting held this year by the Societe Francaise. A large and enthusiastic audience which gathered in the R. V. C. Common Room was not held long in suspense. The first year presented a play in the form of an amusing dialogue, between Miss Massey Malley, the "bourgeois" mother, greatly encumbered with parcels, and wearing a rather eccentric article of head-gear, and her clumsy son, Miss Mary Bishop, staggering under the weight of a petunia, and much embarrassed by his mother's loudly expressed injunctions as to the care of the plant, the value of honesty and the all-important subject of—overshoes!

The crowd in the street car, where this touching scene took place, consisted of an officer, an old professor, a "griselette Parisienne," a thriving bourgeois family and even—the conductor!

The next play was presented by the second year, and proved to be most entertaining. The author, or the authoress, of this play, it is whispered, is—Mlle. Touren. Of this fact the R. V. C. girls are justly proud!

"L'entrance" gave a rather startling representation of the manner in which certain marriages are "staged" in France. Miss McConnell, the responsible head of a bourgeois family, kept the audience in continual peals of laughter by her clever acting and splendid "make up." The excitable mother, who seemed always to be on the point of explosion, was ably represented by Miss Fair, whilst Miss Sylvia Dorkin played the role of the charming and coquettish daughter of the house, appearing at the end of the piece as a very modest and "reserved" young lady—this, to please the duchess, Miss Audrey Lamb, who truly proved a most aristocratic and disdainful personage.

The gentleman, on whom the Polirette family had set their hearts, as son-in-law, was represented by Miss Millicent Perry, whose acting left nothing to be desired.

The promised surprise was the next item on the programme. It was a cleverly executed painting of eight immense sunflowers, the hearts of which could be opened, and the spectators were held spell bound whilst eight pretty faces appeared in the hearts, to the strains of lovely music. We understand that the beauty of the sunflower "maids" was not lost upon the judges (male) who entered a special request to see them in real life after the performance!

The French Society wishes to express its heartfelt thanks to Miss Lichtenstein, the clever artist, for her very novel gift, which proved to be the most popular item of the afternoon's enjoyment.

The last piece, represented by the third and fourth years, was to be the prize winner. The audience was carried back to antiquity to the house of Penelope, where a charming little slave girl (Miss D. Aylen) tricked out in most winsome Greek costume, was disclosed, bearing flowers, to cheer the return of her master, the noble Ulysses. The resigned and virtuous wife of this Greek hero, was represented in very talented fashion by Miss Doris Sharples. A "naughty" flirtation was executed to perfection by the seductive Theano—Miss Ruth Shattford—(attired in the latest mode of Athens) and the noble Ulysses, Miss Rebecca Contant, who truly was a most irresistible "heartbreaker."

The spectators all expressed their admiration of the splendid accent and fluent French displayed throughout this piece.

Prof. Voltaire, Prof. Villard and Prof. Du Roure very kindly acted as judges. The decision as to the winning number was delivered by M. Du Roure, whose extremely witty and humorous speech proved a serious rival to the other entertainments of the afternoon. M. Du Roure made special reference to the untrifling originality and enthusiasm of Mlle. Touren, to whom was due in a large measure the success of the whole entertainment.

West Needs to Train Material.

The editor of the "Manitoban," returning from the track meet at Toronto, urges in an editorial that the West should train their athletes carefully. He says that the East has not the same material, but handles it better. If the West trained the natural athletes it develops, the West would be able to give the East a real struggle.

BASKETBALLERS TO HOLD WORKOUT

A and B Squads Practice in Gym. Today—City League Schedule Arranged.

A very important work-out will take place to-day in Molson Hall. "B" squad will practice from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. "A" squad will take the floor at 6 o'clock for a snappy starting practice. Both squads are working hard under the capable supervision of Crocker Walsky and Van Wagner.

The City League schedule has been drawn up and McGill teams play their first games on December 8. Five McGill teams are entered in this league—one Senior, two Intermediate and two Junior. Many new men are showing up well in both squads, and places on the respective teams will be hotly contested.

It is known that there are many basketballers of note around the college who up to the present have not turned out to the practices. To these men a special invitation is extended to make their initial appearance tonight at five o'clock. So, everybody out and make this practice a record one.

Sir John Foster Fraser, in his lecture on his experience in the United States, has a few epigrams which delighted his English audience. A specially appreciated one was "The only difference in national conceit is that the Englishman assumes his superiority whilst the American asserts his." Another piece of wit got home to the many Americans in the audience when he said that the youth of America is its oldest tradition.

The success of the meeting owes much to the clear insight and thorough knowledge of the subject by Mr. Jones, to the encouragement and incentive for discussion afforded by Dr. Leacock's remarks, and to the efforts of the members of the executive.

OLD COUNTRY CHOIR WILL SING THE "MESSIAH" IN ERSKINE CHURCH

The Old Country Choir, which now consists of 76 trained voices, has entered upon its second year of activities and will give selections from the "Messiah" in Erskine Church next Sunday evening, the 28th inst. This group came naturally together as a result of the Sunday evening "sings" at the Red Triangle Hut, and has Napier, tenor from St. Andrew's Hall, filled a long felt want in the hearts of many natives of the old land, who McCree, conductor and accompanist, had been accustomed to sing Oratorios last.

Since the closing of the Hut, practices have been held in the rooms of the "Cathedral" Men's Club on Union Avenue, and a musical treat and spiritual uplift are promised those fortunate enough to hear the choir next Sunday evening.
